

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Great Interest Felt In the River and Harbor Bill.

Arrangements for Counting the Electoral Votes.

President Arthur Accepts Grant's Relics for the Nation.

Vance Gives His Opinion of Railroad Experts.

To Be On a Par With Expert Chicken Thieves.

Three Little Kittens in the Register of the Lobby--The Swain Court Martial.

WASHINGTON NEWS. THE RIVER AND HARBOR BILL.

Special Telegram to the BEE. WASHINGTON, February 3.--Great interest is felt to-day in the river and harbor bill.

The friends of the Hennessee canal are girding up their loins for the greatest struggle of their lives.

The indications are that if the Hennessee canal appropriation is defeated the river and harbor bill will be killed.

LOBBYISTS HONORED. The members and attendants about the house lobby have been distinguished by the calls and the crying of young children.

The sounds were mysterious and unaccountable. Workmen were sent for today to penetrate the wall to see if a cat was walling up in the masonry.

The register in the vicinity of the sound was removed and out rolled three little kittens. Some combs had crawled into the heating apparatus, and finding her way between the walls, had deposited her young there, where they would be protected from the winter blast.

After some discussion as to the disposition of the bill to-morrow and the impossibility of passing it to-night, it was unanimously agreed that immediately after the morning business session the bill should be taken up, and the debate cease at three o'clock, when the final vote on the bill and all amendments will be taken.

Adjourned. HOUSE. WASHINGTON, February 3.--The house agreed to the senate amendment to the house concurrent resolution making arrangements for counting the election vote.

Stewart, Texas, from the committee on foreign affairs, requesting the president to take all necessary and proper measures to assure John H. Sandow, an American, insurance against the loss of his property.

Representatives Eaton, Lamb and Rice, of the committee on foreign affairs, made a report to the full committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

The committee on the subject of the late revolution in Cuba, and the committee held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment of the independence of the United States.

THE SOCIALISTS.

The City of Pittsburg, the Headquarters and Hotbed.

Of Socialists, Nihilists and Conspirators From All Nations.

They Are Well Organized And Have Plenty of Arms.

And Are Awaiting For a Pretext For An Outbreak.

The Pittsburg Papers Say That It Is A Fact.

And Not A Mere Idle or Sensational Exaggeration, and Sounds the Warning Note.

PITTSBURG SOCIALISTS. PITTSBURG, February 3.--The Chronicle telegraph this afternoon says it has come to the knowledge of some secret agents here that the socialists have stored arms and dynamite in this city, and are ready for an outbreak and attack on the capitalists.

Men from the Hoeking valley and elsewhere are said to be here, ready for the business. Sensational developments are expected, and are waiting for a pretext for an outbreak.

The publication of the article has created considerable alarm. The paper asserts: "For two months a Russian and two English spies have been at work in this city, endeavoring to learn who are in sympathy here with the Irish dynamite, Pittsburg, it is stated, has been for a long while a center of a large revenue of dynamite in the mills and mines are said to believe in the doctrine of nihilism, are alleged to have been liberal in giving. It is then declared that at least two Pittsburg men, who are known in the country over, and who are worth millions of dollars, have furnished money in considerable sums to Irish and French radicals and to German extreme liberals."

The use of the funds in the German rebelling elections. This money, the article says, was evidently not intended to go into the dynamite branch of politics, but a portion of it drifted there, nevertheless, having gone from the hands of one branch of the extremists to the other. The statement is made that in the past three weeks, from a thousand to fifteen hundred thousand guns and revolvers have been received by the socialist sympathizers in the city. Some three millions, it is stated, came accompanied by money from Canada, others from western points and others from eastern cities. A large quantity of dynamite had also been received, and was manufactured in Pittsburg by experienced dynamiters. It is pointed out there are many workings out of the city, among them the Hoeking valley, where the dynamite is stored. Then follows the statement to the effect that the local socialists have gathered in front of the city, and are waiting for a pretext for an outbreak. The article continues: "The movement here is all sorts of elements, the German, Russian, Italian, Swedish, Swiss and French socialists and revolutionists and Irish dynamiters, who have and are using force. There are English interests to be reached here by the Irish dynamiters and the local socialists, too, and the latter know it. A month ago, at least, the local socialists were at several points with the anarchists pure and simple. Now they are meeting in secret, and have met together in a meeting, and are waiting for a pretext for an outbreak. The names and other facts are known to the proper authorities, can have these names and those not readily learned."

The Chronicle telegraph, earnestly protests that the above statements are not sensational exaggeration, but, on the contrary, serious truths. Staub and Fricke, two of the most prominent socialists in the city, were seen to night relative to the story. Fricke assumed a mysterious air, when approached, and refused to talk on the subject. Staub said that the society was weak in numbers, but he expected to see it greatly strengthened in a few weeks. He admitted that Carl Oberman, of New York, was in the city for some time for the purpose of organizing the socialists. Further than this nothing could be learned from Staub.

Carter Harrison's Little Game. Special telegram to the BEE. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., February 3.--There is much speculation and anxiety over the caucus of the democratic members of the two houses of the legislature appointed for to-morrow night to nominate a candidate for United States senator. Carter Harrison's friends are determined either to postpone or burst the democratic legislative caucus, which they will not be able to control to-morrow night. There are unexpected changes between now and then. The destruction of this caucus may be wrought by Harrison, instructing about ten or fifteen of his friends to attend the caucus, and to be present until Friday night, when an other caucus could be manufactured for still further postponing it. The friends of Harrison, who have the information, have dropped on to Harrison's game, and will insist upon the caucus meeting to-morrow night, treating to parody, discipline, and plentiful promises to the caucus members. Harrison wants it free for all and his followers are ready to burst the caucus to secure it. His "chickens" are being driven in and the city hall crowd are expected this afternoon. There is no prospect of a full democratic caucus to-morrow night or at any other time. The rumor that General Black has made an alliance with Harrison is not credited. The republican house caucus will meet this afternoon and appoint a committee to act with the senate committee, and call the United States senatorial caucus for Saturday.

A RED HOT RIOT. SOCIALISTS AND POLICE HAVE A PICNIC IN NEW YORK. NEW YORK, February 3.--Two thousand persons gathered at the socialist meeting last night in Concordia hall avenue, German quarter. There were rumors previous to the meeting that trouble would be caused by a number of their adherents who intended to capture and control the proceedings. This radical element of the party, headed by Theodore Schvab of the Valle Zeitung were determined to hold the extremists in check. A circular printed in English and German denouncing violence and the Irish dynamite had been widely circulated by the Schvab faction, but it excited the Schvab-McCullough, who in return issued a flaming incendiary appeal, demanding the dynamiters and threatening war to England. The meeting was held in the hall, and was attended by a large number of men. Schvab called the meeting to order in such a way that a riot ensued, in which chairs, clubs and revolvers figured.

Captain McCullough commanded silence and forced his way to the platform, followed by his men. Schvab saw him and shouted: "The police! The police!"

The crowd turned upon the officers and Captain McCullough was struck on the head with a chair and knocked down. He regained his feet and at the police revolvers kept the mob away. The socialists were excited by his demands by drawing clubs, knives and pistols. Captain McCullough was wounded by a little while by 30 policemen. This enraged the crowd still further, and they again attacked the police, who responded with their clubs and the rioters were badly injured for their rescue. With the exception of Officer Ratt, who was slightly cut in the face and a few bruises suffered by Captain McCullough, none of the policemen were injured. Peter Brown, one of the rioters had a leg broken and was sent to the hospital. John Schvab was the only man arrested for his rescue. Captain McCullough found him in his station on First street. He submitted to the police, and was released on his own recognizance. After the riot, a dynamite bomb and several shot, black clubs were found in the hall. W. S. Rosenberg, secretary of the party, was arrested. He was said Schvab had asked O'Donovan Rosa to send a gang of his dynamiters to break up the meeting.

FOREIGN NEWS. MRS. DUDLEY'S ATTEMPTED SUICIDE. LONDON, February 3.--Reports are circulated here that Mrs. Dudley, before going to America, once attempted suicide, and was sentenced to a term of imprisonment for the offense. The chaplain of the prison in which she was confined, on being advised of her attempt to kill Rosa, has taken passage on one of the going steamers for New York. Mrs. Dudley is reported to have written many and many subscriptions offered to fund to aid in defending her.

EXCITEMENT ABOUT CUNNINGHAM'S PRISON. LONDON, February 3.--Considerable excitement is being created in London among the friends of Cunningham, accused of having caused the recent explosions in London, are already beginning to take steps for his release. The friends of Cunningham, who are waiting for a pretext for an outbreak, are waiting for a pretext for an outbreak.

PROBABLE ALLIANCE BETWEEN GREAT BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES. LONDON, February 3.--A letter in this evening's Pall Mall Gazette, advocating a political alliance between Great Britain and the United States attracts attention. The American Republics, it says, that now at last it is beginning to have policy. The doctrine of complete isolation so long maintained by American statesmen has perished. Minister Olney has been active in the Berlin conference on the Congo question, thus giving the prisoners a chance to escape in the confusion.

THE POLICE THIS EVENING made another important arrest in connection with the recent explosions in London. The prisoner was put under several days and finally run down by Police Inspectors Jarvis and Stone, who were conducting the prosecution against Cunningham. The prisoner was taken to the police station, and was held in a box which was purchased at White Chapel and substituted for Cunningham's brown hair. Present street lodgings and rooms in Scarborough street immediately after the explosions, was found in the possession of the prisoner. It is said the police found Cunningham in the possession of a box which was purchased at White Chapel and substituted for Cunningham's brown hair. Present street lodgings and rooms in Scarborough street immediately after the explosions, was found in the possession of the prisoner. It is said the police found Cunningham in the possession of a box which was purchased at White Chapel and substituted for Cunningham's brown hair.

STARBURD, February 3.--Major Chernside has arrived here. The Arabs made an attack upon the convey sent to Kassala. A stubborn fight ensued, resulting in the repulse of the Arabs, who left 250 dead and 500 wounded. Five thousand Abyssinian troops have been sent by King John to relieve the garrison at Galabat and Geraha.

PARIS, February 3.--It is reported here that two well-known German officers and one British officer had been detected in going to New York by the London police.

MRS. DUDLEY'S ATTEMPTED SUICIDE. LONDON, February 3.--An examination of the police reports in the Worship street police court reveals the following: "Lucilla Dudley, who had been charged with the murder of twenty-four years, who described herself as a governess, was charged with attempting to commit suicide by jumping from the railway bridge at Liverpool Street, London, he saw the prisoner, Mrs. Dudley in a first class carriage, apparently asleep, with a handkerchief over her face. Found her unconscious. She was holding a bottle labelled poison. Mrs. Dudley was taken to the hospital. Witness said that there was no one on the railway carriage. The surgeon who attended Mrs. Dudley at the hospital, deposed that she was unconscious from the effects of chloroform. Witness said that she recovered consciousness at eight hours. Mrs. Dudley denied that she had taken anything of a poisonous nature, and that she was not in the possession of the bottle of poison. The jury returned a verdict of guilty of attempting to commit suicide. The prisoner was committed to the house of detention. The magistrate said that, in view of the fact that the chaplain of the prison had been notified of the prisoner's refusal to promise to resign the charge, he was unable to set her at liberty without the receipt of twenty-five pounds sterling each for her good behavior for three months. She smiled at this announcement, and left the court room quietly.

Col. Morrison Confident of the Illinois Senatorship. Special Telegram to the BEE. SPRINGFIELD, February 3.--It is confidently asserted by Col. Morrison's friends that he will receive the democratic caucus nomination for United States senator to-morrow night either on the first or second ballot, that is fact he has a majority of the votes already. This was secured to-day by the withdrawal of Josh Allen, whose vote went to Morrison.

The Railroads Put in Their Oar. Special telegram to the BEE. LINCOLN, February 3.--Neither house of senate transacted any business of importance at this afternoon session. After a short meeting of the committee on the whole the senate adjourned to give the joint railroad committees an opportunity of hearing from representatives of the railroads.

A resolution in the that it a journal for the same purpose was met with strong opposition. The cleared Omatia and Newcastles the work of agitators and the mistatement of the press. He believed the railroads were run with advantage to this commonwealth without actual legislation. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed his forty-five minute speech by saying "the proposed law would cripple every new enterprise."

M. Raymond, a wholesale grocer of Lincoln, was asked to tell what he knew of exorbitant freight rates. He then read a clipping from The Bee two years ago, regarding exorbitant charges on the Omaha bridge and extended the article a false. He presented a vast array of figures to prove that the reduction in both passenger and freight rates would be a robbery of the railroads, the Union Pacific not having declared a dividend for a year, and he feared it would not in another year. He closed